Protecting What You Value Most

Wireless Security System

Home is Where the Heart is

With the hectic pace that modern life brings you, now, more than ever, your home is a haven, a refuge from it all. Home. There's no place like it. And at the heart of a home is family. You want to do everything you can do to keep your family safe and secure – everything you can do to protect what you value most. A security system from DSC keeps a watchful eye on your family and other valuables when you are home and when you aren't. It is one of the most important investments you will ever make.

Superior Protection. Complete Security.

With the new Wireless Security System from DSC, featuring the new ALEXOR wireless panel, you can be assured that you are receiving the finest home security system on the market today. With a wide range of complementary security devices, the system offers fully secure, always on communication and complete protection.

What Wireless Means for You

Because the system is wireless, it installs quickly with minimal compromise to your home structure. Faster, easier installation means less installer time in your home as well – so you can get on with the business of your day.

Contemporary Design Blends Into Décor

With a sleek and contemporary look, all DSC security devices project a modern feel and at the same time, inconspicuously blend into your home décor.

The Alexor Wireless Panel. The Heartbeat of Your System

Alexor is the center component of the DSC's Wireless Security System. Alexor operates as the "virtual" brain, and communicates wirelessly to all the security devices with the system.

Control your System with Confidence

Through the compact and sleek keypad, you control your security system. With easy to use one-touch keys, all family members can use the system with complete confidence. Handy wall or free-standing desk stand options give you more choice in where keypads may be located throughout the home.

The Highest Level of Protection Available

Some security devices (called wireless contacts) are installed on your windows and doors to monitor those entry points. Other types of devices are installed in different areas of your home as well. These will detect movement within the home (without detecting pets), breaking glass on windows, carbon monoxide presence, smoke or fire, and flooding. When used with a monitoring service, all devices are monitored to ensure your family and your home is protected at all times. It is truly the highest level of protection available.

Instant Connection, With Back-Up, to Emergency Response

When an alarm occurs, a monitored DSC Wireless Security System instantly connects to a monitoring station and emergency services are dispatched as required. The system sends the alarm transmission over the phone line, or as installed by your security professional, also by either Internet or GSM/GPRS channels (the same communication method as your mobile phone). These back-up methods ensure that you are never out of contact. The solution is perfect for homes which may have opted out of the traditional phone line, for a mobile phone or Voice Over IP phone.

Sounding the Alarm

In the event of an alarm trigger, DSC's Wireless Security System will let you, your family and surrounding neighbors know through the indoor and/or outdoor siren. The indoor siren announces signs of trouble from within the home. The outdoor siren makes known any unwanted entrance to property and indicates it with the accompanying strobe light. The outdoor siren's temperature sensor can also communicate the outdoor temperature to the keypad inside your home. Talk to your security professional about adding this great feature to your system.

Simple Operation at the Touch of a Button

No more fumbling at the door with armfuls of packages or worries about remembering security codes. The wireless key provides you with easy management of your security system, information regarding the status of your system and the added confidence of portable personal protection – at your fingertips. You can arm or disarm your system easily as you approach your house or call for help from anywhere inside or in close proximity to it.

The system can also be managed with DSC's new "prox" tag. With the prox tag, simply swipe the tag across the front of the keypad and the system is either armed or disarmed. It's that easy.

Someone to Watch Over You

DSC's new Wireless Security System, featuring the Great Protector, the ALEXOR wireless panel, keeps watch, providing you and your family with complete protection and peace of mind. You can rest easy, knowing that DSC will protect what you value the most – your family, your home and your possessions.

Sleep soundly knowing that a monitored DSC Wireless Security System provides 24/7 reliable protection for your loved ones and your home.
